

ABSTRACT

Aerodynamic profile that comprises two zones or main sections: one is the front surface inclined with a positive angle, generating the totality or greater part of the lift, and the other is the rear portion or zone to the front surface, profiled or streamlined, formed by two curved, generally hollow surfaces and, which does not generate lift, but leads the air flow properly reducing drag and avoiding boundary layer separation.